Dearest Milca:

Thank you so much for the letter you sent. I'm sorry that I haven't been able to respond sooner, but as you can imagine, this is a very busy time of year for all of us at the North Pole.

It is not un-common for girls your age to question my existence. I know that you have younger brothers and a sister, and kindly ask that you do not question my existence in front of them. As for your belief, I would love to meet you in person to put aside any doubts you have, but we are just too busy, and it would be quite costly to arrange a flight all the way to Columbus at this time. Instead, I have enclosed a picture of Mrs. Claus and myself in the hopes that will be enough proof for you. Oh, and as for the DNA test, I don't like needles, so you can't have any of my blood. I have however included our fingerprints below. Good luck in verifying that they actually belong to Mrs. Clause and myself. Neither of us has ever been arrested by the police, so our prints are not likely on file.

I look forward to visiting you this Christmaas Eve. If you are awake when I get to your house, we can share some milk and cookies. Please ask your grandma to fix her special no-bake cookies as those are some of my favorites.
